

One out of every four voting citizens in the United States will be a veteran of World War II. Care for veterans of all previous wars cost $5 billion dollars up to 1945. Cost of the new GI Bill Rights may finally cost more than $3 billion dollars, according to the U. S. News. A federal bonus, similar to that granted after World War I, would add 10 to 15 billion dollars. Prediction: Vote-hungry candidates will soon advocate a federal bonus for our 20 million veterans.

Washington commentators hint that behind the firing of Henry Wallace by President Truman was the unified front put up by United States Senators Vandenberg, of Michigan and Connally of Texas. Wallace is stumping Michigan industrial centers this month, while Vandenberg is in Paris.

Michigan's penal system, objective of a legislative investigation this year, is given a top rating by the American Prison Association's corrective congress in session at Detroit. Dr. Garrett Heyns is the Michigan director. The legislative report will go to the 1947 state legislature in January.

The Civilian Production Administration refused to authorize repairs at the Coliseum at the state fairgrounds. To safeguard its veterans' housing village, largest on any college campus in the nation, Michigan State College has inaugurated its own fire department with six firemen and two fire engines on 24-hour duty.

Because of the increased cost of state conservation services, the next legislature will be asked to approve an increase in hunting and fishing fees. Anglers and small-game hunters would pay $2 instead of $1, deer hunters $3.50 instead of $2.25, and trappers $2 instead of $1.50.

To meet transportation competition of the Pere Marquette streamlined trains operating between Grand Rapids, Lansing and Detroit, the Great Lakes Greyhound Lines are inaugurating three round trip express buses daily. Another illustration of free enterprise.

Michigan's one-man grand jury system received flattering praise from Sanford Bates, noted correctionist. The Lansing grand jury's funds were down to $8,000 last week, and the "little legislature" has been requested to appropriate $50,000 more. Approximately $450,000 has been expended so far.

Union bricklayers working on Michigan State College's $5,000,000 construction program get $2 an hour or $80 for 40 hours' work. Average pay, including overtime, runs $136. The average weekly wage of college instructors is $67. Roll your own.

Government ownership and operation of the copper industry—along with industries producing lead, zinc, aluminum, magnesium, gold and silver—are proposed by the CIO Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union. This union bargains for more than 160,000 workers. Copper mining in Michigan is now regulated by a federal "premium price plan" which provides for government subsidies. The same CIO union recently defeated a proposal to bar communists from holding office.

Midland's Dow Chemical Company has a $10-million dollar expansion program, but can not proceed—due to a housing shortage and lack of needed equipment.

The Michigan Unemployment Compensation commission, with its 2,300 employees, will take over about mid-November the federal employment service with around 1,250 employees. While salaries are paid from federal funds, the next governor will have to make payroll to account for. There are 72 local employment offices in the state, and 65 part-time offices.

The eighth report to the President and to Congress by the director of war mobilization and reconversion at Washington sounds unusual danger signs. If we are to avert a serious depression in the near future, business must act to hold down prices "wherever possible." Labor leaders must resist demands for spiraling wage increases, farmers must maintain their high level of production, and consumers must spend their money wisely.

If the sales tax diversion amendment is adopted on Nov. 5, chances are unlikely that the legislature will continue state aid for Wayne University. Detroit's tax plight prompted school board to raise $7,700,000 to Wayne University for new buildings. This institution has more than 15,000 students, compared with a pre-war level of 10,000.

The Michigan Education Association estimates the annual financial needs of the public schools at $104,000,000—some 40 million dollars more than they are getting today. Ballot Proposal No. 2 would guarantee schools an amount equal to 42.64 percent of the sales tax of the previous year, plus one-sixth

Wave Outplays Mancelona, But The Ironmen Do All The Scoring

Wind Up Home Stand Tomorrow Afternoon.

The Grayling Green Wave ripped and roared for a 11 to 8 final down record over the Mancelona Ironmen on the local green sward last Friday afternoon, but allowed the orange and black-clad visitors to do all the scoring—and lost the contest by a 19 to 0 count.

Grayling outgained the Ironmen by a 237 to 161 yard total, but Mancelona cashing in on breaks, pushed over two touchdowns in the first half to sew up the game. The visitors received the kickoff and in the first play Grayling lost the services of Jim Douglas, right tackle, who suffered severely twisted knee tendons. He will be out of action indefinitely. Mancelona, in a series of downs, went for a touchdown, but failed to convert the extra point. Early in the second quarter, they received the ball on the Grayling 20 when an official ruled that Mancelona had recovered a Grayling fumble before the ball rolled out of bounds. They then pushed over the final line line for another six-point play and added the point on a pretty pass play.

Grayling really got going then and pushed the visitors all over the field, but couldn't seem to produce the scoring punch. On two occasions the Wave tumbled inside the Mancelona 10-yard line. They bottled up the Ironmen's attack for the remainder of the game, and seemed to gain all will in the middle of the field.

It was just a case of too little football and a little too late, says Coach Cornell. It was proven that the green-clad boys of Grayling could play football, however, as they outcharged and pushed the heavier Mancelona players around after the second score.

The Wave faces a mediocre East Jordan eleven at the local field tomorrow at 2:30, to wind up this season's home games. They will finish the season with games at Harbor Springs and Boyne City. East Jordan has only been defeated by Charlievoix and Mancelona, and from those games Grayling should be conceded a slight edge.

Harbor Springs pounded Grayling for a 40 to 0 win last week, while East Jordan absorbed a 42 to 0 drubbing at the hands of the Raiders of Charlievoix. Boyne City trounced Pellston, 19 to 6, in another league contest.

Coach Cornell has issued a plea to the fans to please stay behind the line located 5 yards from the gridiron out of bounds line. The admission gate will be placed at the end of the field near Michigan Avenue and fans are requested to buy their tickets there.

The return of Captain Miller to the lineup helped strengthen the center of the line and in some small ways help cover the loss of right tackle Douglas.

Statistics of last Friday's game reveal that Grayling outgained Mancelona 146 to 116 yards on the ground attack, and 91 to 45 yards in the air. Grayling punted once for 45 yards, while Mancelona's three kicks averaged but 27 yards.

Mancelona's head area Wave bobbles, while Grayling captured one Mancelona slip-up.

Coach Cornell said at the end of the game: "Our kids have the idea now; I just hope they will play football from the start to the finish during the rest of our games."

The starting lineup included Goss and R. Miller at ends; Douglas and Kragge at tackles; Hanna and Grimstad at guards; and Burns at center. The backfield was pursued with Chuck Feldhaus at quarter, Carlson and Smock at halves, and Keway at fullback. Captain H. Miller and Lozon substituted at tackles; C. Papendick at end, Crawford at center, and E. Rasmussen at quarterback.

Louis Douville, Local Firm Partner, Killed in Alpena Auto Accident

Louis J. Douville, of Alpena, partner in the Peterson Beverage Company of Grayling, was killed in an auto accident near Alpena on October 18.

Douville succumbed to a broken neck, according to Coroner W. E. Nesbitt, when his car left the road, broke off a telephone pole and then rolled over two times. He was found in the driver's seat when the car was righted, and the coroner's report said death was instantaneous.

The collision occurred at the intersection of the Hubbard Lake and Nicholas Hill roads, about a mile north of Hubbard Lake village. A car driven by Frank Schultz, an Ossineke township farmer was in collision with the Douville car when it entered the intersection from the east.

Funeral services for Douville were held last Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Alpena First Methodist Church, with Rev. James W. Lees officiating.

Douville, in partnership with Howard E. Taracks, also of Alpena, purchased the beverage plant from Carl W. Peterson in February of 1944. Since taking over the company, Mr. Douville was a frequent visitor to Grayling. He operated a wholesale grocery busi-

LATTER DAY SAINTS PRESENT PROGRAMS

Starting Sunday evening, October 27, and continuing each evening through Friday, November 1, special meetings will be conducted at the Grayling Methodist Church, under the sponsorship of the Grayling Mission of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Elder Virgil J. Billings, member of the Quorum of Seventy of the General Church of Latter Day Saints, will be in charge. His coming to Grayling brings an interesting speaker and capable representative of religion as he has traveled in many of the Mid-western States and through the South.

This promises to be a most unusual and interesting series of evening programs. The series will be rare Kodachrome slides of the recent archaeological discoveries of South and Central America, showing the advancement of the pre-Columbian civilization.

This will be the first time that such pictures have been shown in the community of Grayling, and should be of interest to all. Among the subjects presented will be such topics as "Christ Among the Ancient Americans," "The Serpent Symbolism of Ancient Americans," "Ancient America, a Highly Advanced Civilization." These and other subjects will be presented with vivid color illustrations.

Services start each evening at 7:30 with inspirational singing. The public is invited to attend and hear these unusual presentations.

Olsons Plan New Theatre

George and James Olson, owners of the Rialto Theatre in Grayling and the Pines in Houghton Lake, besides others in this area, are planning the construction of a new movie palace in the Houghton Lake community. Extra headquarters will be obtained from the population there are given as the reasons for building an additional theatre.

The new building, which will be constructed of ledge rock and logs, to blend with the natural surroundings, is to offer many new, modern features. Plans call for a seating capacity of 700 in addition to a large foyer and lounge room for patrons' enjoyment and convenience.

Plans for the new theatre building, which will be located near the Pines, were prepared by the C. Howard Crane and Associates, architects firm of Detroit. Authority must be obtained from the Civilian Production Administration prior to the beginning of construction, but the Olsons anticipate the completion of contracts and other details, and hope to start construction in the early spring.

At this writing his condition is reported as fair.

EMTA TO Study Fish Planting

The 36th annual meeting of the Eastern Michigan Tourist Association went on record in Bay City last Thursday to appoint a special committee to study the State Conservation Department's proposed program of curtailing the planting of fish in Michigan's lakes and streams.

The tourist body also went all out to support the state and pledged its efforts to fight for the construction of a bridge over the Straits of Mackinac. It further recommended that corrections be made in the state's liquor laws to curtail the inequalities they affect the tourist.

William J. Schill, Saginaw hotel man, was elected to the presidency of the organization, replacing P. L. Radcliffe of Detroit, General Manager of the Grand Hotel.

C. Yates McDaniel, chief of the Associated Press Bureau at Detroit, and former war correspondent, was elected to the post of principal speaker at the annual banquet, which was held in the ballroom of the Wenonah Hotel.

McDaniel was introduced by Glenn McDonald, Bay City Times editor, who served as toastmaster. Musical selections for the banquet were ably handled by the First Presbyterian Church choir.

Arthur Worden Elected As New Head of Sports Club

Arthur Worden, owner of the Plaza Grill was elected last night as the new president of the Grayling Sportsmen's Club. Rola Falt was named as vice-president, Robert Brooks as secretary, Robert Neale as treasurer and Carl Easton as director-at-large.

The election took place at the annual meeting of the club held at the Legion Hall Wednesday evening. The club also passed a resolution commending the action of the EMTA executive committee in resolving the appointment of a special committee to investigate the fish planting policy of the Michigan Conservation Department.

The EMTA resolution was adopted last week at their annual meeting held in Bay City. Retiring president Edwin Carlson appointed a committee to write the EMTA commending them on their action and inviting the tourist investigating committee to meet with the Grayling club after its appointment.

Reports of the secretary and treasurer's auditing committees were read and approved by club membership. A lengthy discussion was held on the filling of the mouth of the School Section lake outlet and the advantages and disadvantages of reopening a channel from the creek to the AuSable River.

Auto Stripper Is Given Jail Term

Harold McLean, 22, of Otter Lake, who confessed to the theft and stripping of the automobile of Joseph Kessler here, was sentenced to a term of two to five years in the State Prison of Southern Michigan by Circuit Judge George W. Desjardins at the Tuscola county circuit court last week. McLean pleaded guilty October 7 to stripping the automobile of a Cass City man. In his written confession to Tuscola County Sheriff J. H. Goslin, McLean told of similar operation in the Thumb area and in central Michigan around Grayling, Mancelona, Cadillac and other places.

At prison he will join his partner in these operations, Marvin Burwell, 20, of Lapeer, and the "fence" who accepted the stolen parts, Don Grossbauer of Lapeer; who were sentenced in the Lapeer County Court by Judge Desjardins. Grossbauer received a two to five year term and Burwell a three to five year sentence.

Mrs. Peter Madsen Struck, And Injured

Mrs. Peter Madsen was struck by a car and badly injured at the Fish Hatchery bridge about 6 o'clock last Saturday night. Mrs. Madsen in an effort to protect her dog, who was with her, placed herself in the path of an automobile driven by Jack Millikin.

She sustained a fractured right leg, three toes broken in two places each and numerous bruises and contusions. X-rays were to be taken later to investigate the possibility of fractured ribs and pelvis.

Millikin's car broke off a highway pole and small tree in an effort to avoid Mrs. Madsen and stopped in the ditch. After several futile attempts to stop passing motorists Millikin drove his car from the ditch and took Mrs. Madsen to the hospital.

The accident was investigated by Sheriff John A. Papendick. Mrs. Madsen's condition was described as "fair" by relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Verellen spent a few days with their daughter, Mrs. Albert Owens of Vassar. They were joined there by their son, Pvt. Donald Verellen, who is en route to Fitzsimons General Hospital, Denver, Colo., where he will complete a 26-week course as a surgical technician.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Strong are visiting their son and family, the Robert Strongs.

PLANE'S WORLD RECORD-BREAKING ROUTE... The broken line on the above map shows the route followed by the navy's "Fleet" a Lockheed P-3V Neptune, on its world record non-stop flight of 11,325 miles from Perth, Australia, to Columbia, Ohio. The plane took 55 hours and 17 minutes for the trip, landing at the Ohio airport in excellent condition. It carried a crew of four and a nine-month-old kangaroo. The solid line, above, indicates part of the proposed route, from which the plane veered at Midway Island.

HIGH SCHOOL SUMMARY—The first term honor roll and non-privileged lists give us the following interesting figures: Out of a total high school enrollment of 287, there were 52 (or 18%) with "B" averages or better, including 9 who received all "A's", 175 (or 61%) received a "2" or better in citizenship, with 10 receiving a "1" mark. 188 (or 65%) were on one or both honor rolls.

On the non-privileged list 25 (or 9%) received less than "3" in citizenship, and 40 (or 21%) received below a passing average in scholarship. Altogether 70 pupils (or 24%) were on one list or another with only 15 (or 5%) appearing on both lists.

BAND—Most of the instruments are back from the repair shop. A new field drum, baton and music have been added to our supplies and equipment. Last Thursday the first group practice was held. Several conflicts, most of which have been adjusted, kept several out of the group the first day.

Several of the band members will be able to get a half hour of supervised practice individually or in small groups. However, this will not be enough practice, and all members are expected to practice at home.

On Playing the Fiddle Badly

—with nothing more exciting than old songs, and a glass of moderate beer or cider.

From where I sit, it's a heap more important to be a poor fiddle player, than not to play at all.

More important to be a part of the American scene—with its community music, home entertainment, friendly glass of beer—than to hold out for professional perfection. (Besides, I like to play the fiddle—even badly!)

Who's Boss?

On other pages of this issue will be found a letter from Ethel Taylor Pierce, former resident of Grayling, now living in Pittsfield, Massachusetts. Mrs. Pierce, who has been a member of her profession for a number of years, has also traveled quite widely, and having been away from continental United States during a large part of the war, probably noticed the small insidious changes that have crept into our way of life under the guise of wartime life and economy more than we.

As she so well points out, it is time for the average citizen to begin to really analyze the labor situation. About the only things the "organizers" have missed are the housewives and dairy cows—and they are probably almost to the top of the list now. We hold no quarrel with the workingman, and where unions can operate responsibly and fairly, we think it's fine. But there is no place in the professions for either unions or socialism.

The only reason for attempts to reach into the professions with unionism is a greedy lust for power and monetary reward by unprincipled union leaders. It is about time for the American people to find out in their own minds whether this country is to be run, operated and lived in for the express purpose of these gangster-like union bosses or for the citizens as a whole.

Remember this one small blot on our record when you go to the polls on November 5. When it gets to the point where union men 100 miles away can dismiss you from your position regardless of the attitude of your employer, it is time to act! Are we to be herded hither and yon like a flock of sheep, or are we, like past Americans, going to grasp our destiny in our two hands and place it where we wish?

With our glorious history behind us and the successful ending of our sixth war, it would seem impossible that internal dissension and the acts of an almost lawless element could continue to be allowed in our country. The charges of communism in union ranks has been established without question. Our belief has always been that union should clean its own skirts. We have waited long and patiently for this to happen. It has not occurred. It is time for the American people to stand up on their two feet and free our country and our workers from the chains of Red-influenced czars.

Though Basil Hubbell's job is raising trout at Grayling Hatchery for the Grayling district, employees of the Paris Hatchery are not letting him forget that he had to go to Newaygo County in the Paris district to take the season's record fly-caught brown trout—a 27-inch, 7-pound 12-ounce specimen. Basil's brother Arnold, who also is a World War II veteran and Grayling Hatchery employee, tried unsuccessfully to beat his brother's record, fishing in waters of the home district. The family contest is to be continued next season.

Letters To The Editor

Pittsfield, Mass., Oct. 8, 1946.

Dear Mr. Strong:
I note your editorial of a couple of weeks ago concerning the life of one of Grayling's most admired citizens and it being used as an example of free enterprise. Tonight I would like to express my own views on the same subject of free enterprise, but from a different angle—one that is uppermost in my mind as I write because of its effects on the future of all of us.

I note that some of you may think up there, "What effect could one pharmacist in Pittsfield, Mass., joining or not joining a labor union, possibly make on us in Grayling, Michigan?" Simply as they are successful on the Eastern coast and New England factory towns, and in the West, they will move farther inland until the drug stores will be unionized from coast to coast. And you will probably shrug your shoulders and say, "What difference will that make up here, where we have only three or four pharmacists?" Perhaps not directly any difference, but in the long run possibly a great deal, not only in advanced prices but in the quality of the merchandise which you receive, and the trend toward socialized medicine. Every step we take toward union among pharmacists is a step toward socialism in the professions. I have had a little bit of experience with socialized medicine and I want none of it. I want to be free to go to what ever doctor I choose and to have my prescriptions filled wherever I please, and I want to know that the pharmacist that fills them is holding his job because he is qualified and capable and has, thru experience, learned his profession well—and not because he can't be fired whether he is good or bad because he holds a union card, or is a civil service employee.

I know by this time you are wondering just why I had this sudden inspiration to write you. My voice is only one small one—but you own a paper and may be able to reach many more people with a good editorial than I could hope to do. Grayling is a small town—but it has its quota of veterans; even tho' so far you haven't been troubled with the unions and probably only notice its effects when you price a new car, or there's a truck strike and things don't come through as they should, or you try to put thru a telephone call and learn there's a strike somewhere; but it would be well for every one of you to ponder wisely many things when you vote. And I, one, certainly shall, after a little experience the other day with one of the union organizers—which is the point of my letter.

At this moment I am assistant manager of one of the chain drug stores, and assistant managers are classed by the union as pharmacists if they hold a license, so the man representing the union came back to talk to us—this is a store which isn't a great deal larger than the stores there—there are only two pharmacists and the manager who is registered. For about 20 minutes he told us about the "guild" which he represented, and how it was going to raise the standards of the pharmacists and make a profession out of it. So I asked him what he thought it was now, if not a profession. And what he thought the American Pharmaceutical Association was if not to help raise our standards; and what union did he represent? He had carefully avoided any reference to the word "union," preferring to call it a "guild." Furthermore, I couldn't see what possible benefits a pharmacist could get from joining—but he promised a magnificent raise of $5 a week (of which 10% went back in union dues—and not to mention how much in possible "special assessments"). At this point I suggested the unions were getting too much already, and I realized it more on pay day when 20% of my salary was deducted. He said, "You can't blame income tax on the union;" to which I replied: "I could blame high income tax on strikes for higher pay in war industries." His answer was that "is a deep subject of economics!" It just happened that we had a special commission feature go

STUDENTS STRIKE OVER G.I. BILLING . . . Students of Glassboro, N. J., high school are shown picketing after they went on strike in protest of a school board rule forbidding students 19 years old or over to play on the school football team. Striking students want the ruling changed so that the veterans again can play football.

thru which raised my salary for the month by about $35, and which was given voluntarily by the company—that more than topped what he offered. I asked him why he didn't come around in 1935 when we were working 61 hours a week for $25 instead of waiting till the law of supply and demand brought hours down and wages up—in a system of free enterprise—and try to cut in then. Then he started talking about our "security," how we could be fired, and I told him I did my work to the very best of my ability I had and I'd always had a job wherever I wanted to work, and that I expected to keep on having one as long as I did my work—and asked him if he did not believe in the right of an employer, who, incidentally, was paying the salary, to fire an employee. He replied, "Not without just cause." And I asked if this meant "not without union approval," and his answer was that "it would have to come before the meeting." I told him it was my own opinion that the pharmacists would only raise their profession to the highest possible level, but strictly honest dealings, by absolutely ethical standards and not by union management which would lower rather than raise their standards, since there are some people who have licenses and who are working but for various reasons are not capable or efficient, and who in a system of free enterprise would not be allowed to keep their jobs. I worked with one, not here in Pittsfield, who had been on the job drunk several times, and who eventually left the profession. (That, of course, is not a problem in Grayling, since you know who you are hiring, but in a large city where the demand is greater, you sometimes get "floaters," who have worked in many places—because they couldn't hold a job long enough to take root anywhere, and they can be eliminated from the payroll very soon if the employers have control, and "it doesn't have to come before the meeting," either! I then asked the man, "What happens if I don't sign up?" "Well," says he, "in 30 days we can replace you with a union man—if the store goes union." In other words, "closed shop." That made me furious, to say the least. To think that someone from Boston who knew nothing about my work and had no authority over my employer, could fire me! I told him that, so far as I was concerned, he could go ahead and replace me—but I couldn't exactly see how he could when there weren't pharmacists enough to go around—that I had worked in three states, the District of Columbia, and the Republic of Panama without a union card, for 12 years, and I had no intention of getting one now I lost my job. Then I threw in a few thoughts on what I thought of unions in general, and their leaders in particular, just for good measure. Needless to say, he decided not to try to convince me any further on the merits of the "guild," but did get many of the fountain crew because they were afraid of losing their jobs. I feel very keenly about this whole matter, because I have enjoyed my work, and have worked whether I had to or not, because I wanted to. No one forced me to take pharmacy, and no

ANDRE BARUCH, telephoning to announce his son's arrival, was so exuberant that he could hardly talk. "Of course it's a boy!" said he, as if there couldn't have been any doubt about that. Young Wayne Edward will have to be famous, with two such parents. Andre was tops in radio before he joined the army and chalked up an outstanding record; now he's announcing on "Your Hit Parade," the Lombardo and Harry James nights for "Spotlight Bands," and several others. Mama Bea Wain has long been known for her perfect diction as well as her distinctive style in singing; she's been on "Your Hit Parade" and other big radio shows. Now that Wayne's arrived, she'll be on the air again.

It sounded fine, that plan to paint Betty Hutton and the girls of a chorus line with gold lacquer for the Casino de Paris finale in Paramount's "Perils of Pauline." But it had to be abandoned—Betty and 12 of the 18 dancers were allergic to the gold paint.

Enough Food is no Accident

It is no accident that the largest crops in our history are being harvested this year when we, and the rest of the world, need them most.

In spite of war, loss of labor and little new equipment, the American farmer has again taken care of us and provided a life-saving surplus for abroad.

How do our farmers do it? How is it that only sixteen per cent of our people can feed all of us and go on breaking records in the face of circumstances which slow up industry?

There are three reasons: First, farmers work harder and longer than most other Americans. Second, they know how to make the best use of tools. And, third, they have a long-standing partnership with industry seeking to satisfy their urge to get more out of the land for the same labor. Farmers are still practicing the kind of enterprise that built America.

National thanks are due the farmer for the job he has done in the last five years. Universal respect is due him for his foresight in helping industry equip farms to meet a whole series of emergencies.

BUT . . . we should not crowd our luck, or the farmer's luck either. Too many farm tools are now worn out. Without new ones production may go down. Farmers need over eight hundred million dollars' worth of new implements and equipment. It is up to industry and labor to keep wheels turning to produce them, but any recurrence of strikes would prevent this.

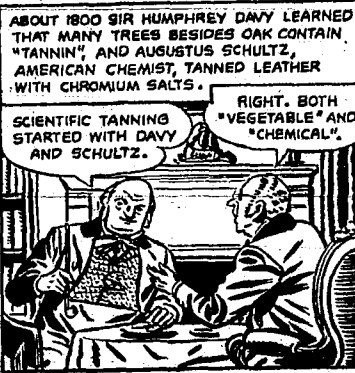

America should see that the hard working farmer gets what he needs.

CHAPTER XVIII

Dick swallowed and wet his lips. He had heard stories like this before, but hitherto they had been something that happened to people who had the far-off quality of anonymity. Hearing it reported as a matter of course by a little girl in his own home town was something else again. He looked at Kessler and back at Margaret. Cherry, who had sat down on top of the ladder, was looking at Kessler too, as though they both wanted him to say it hadn't really happened like this.

"Come here, Margaret," said Kessler gently.

She went to him, and he put his arms around her.

"It was dreadful in Germany," said Kessler. "But we aren't afraid any more."

She looked up at him artlessly. "Oh no, of course not. Not here."

"Nobody does things like that here," said Kessler. "There aren't any Nazis in America."

"Oh no," Margaret said again. She laughed at a recollection. "When we first came here," she said to the others, "I was scared of the men in uniform. But they were just policemen and soldiers. They didn't bother anybody."

"No, everybody is safe here," Kessler went on. "Nobody comes into a house without being asked. If they want to come in they ring the bell, and if you tell them not to come in they stay outside. Nobody is scared in the United States. Margaret used to be scared, but she isn't any more."

"It's different here," said Margaret.

"And your supper is getting cold," Kessler suggested. "You'd better go eat it."

"All right."

"And aren't you going to thank Mrs. Herlong and Dick and Cherry for helping you with the tree?"

"Oh yes! It's just wonderful. Thank you so much."

"We're glad we could help," said Elizabeth. She took Margaret's hand and went with her into the dining room where her supper was ready.

Margaret started to eat with a healthy appetite, evidently not appalled by the story she had told. When Elizabeth returned to the front room Dick was still standing by the tree and Cherry still sat on the ladder, apparently too horrified to move. Kessler was speaking to them.

"If it seems cruel to let her go on talking, it's less cruel than making her shut it up inside herself. I thought it was easier on you to listen than it would have been on her if I had told her to stop."

"But what sort of cattle are they?" Dick exclaimed. "It's a lot of things about them, cruel and vicious and all that, but not just going around kicking little girls!"

"I told your mother once," said Kessler, "that your only fault was that you didn't realize how superior you were to your neighbors."

"To my neighbors? But I don't know anybody like that!"

"No, you don't know anybody like that," "Gee whiz," said Dick. He went over to another side of the room and sat down.

"Why did they kill her parents?" Cherry asked breathlessly.

"They didn't. Her parents killed themselves."

"Ahi!" Cherry let go her breath audibly.

"Margaret thinks the Nazis killed them. They killed so many others. I haven't tried to tell her any differently. She doesn't understand suicide."

"But why?" exclaimed Cherry. Then she added apologetically, "I'm sorry. I guess it's none of my business."

"There's no reason why you shouldn't know," Kessler answered. He glanced at Elizabeth. "Shall I go on, Mrs. Herlong?"

Yes, if you can bear it. After all, Mrs. Kessler, we've heard it before. It's been in the papers and on the radio."

Cherry said what they had all been thinking. "But it's different when it happens to somebody you know! You mean it happened to Margaret's family like what we read about?"

"Why yes, the same old story," Kessler answered. "She and her mother were shoved off the side walk, she didn't have enough to eat and even when her parents went without there wasn't enough for her, they saw other children beaten and starved and knew there was nothing else in store for Margaret. Their old friends crossed the street when they saw Margaret's parents coming because they were afraid to be seen speaking to Jews. They tried and tried to get away and every door was shut against them. They stood it as long as they could. They were a brave and gallant pair. But the day Margaret told you about, her mother's spirit broke. She tried to kill Margaret, and she succeeded with herself. She was a doctor and there were still a few drugs in the house. The only reason she didn't succeed with Margaret was that she wanted the child's death to be quick and easy, and she gave her too much."

Cherry was staring at him, unconscious that there were tears in her wide-stretched eyes.

"And her father?" Dick blurted.

"He and I came in together. We had been out to buy food. We had to stand in line to buy it, and I tried to help him, because as I am not Jewish things were easier for me. But I can't stand in line very long, or carry any parcels except what I can put into my pockets. We used to do the buying. It was too frightful for Margaret and her mother on the street. When we came in we thought they were both dead. We knew the house had been searched because it was in such disorder. Jacoby—Margaret's father—knew they would come back for him. With Margaret and her mother gone he had no more reason to keep trying. He was like an insane man. He had no gun—he had taken that long before—so he stepped out of the window."

"But Margaret?" Elizabeth exclaimed as he paused.

"I don't know how I ever realized, just then, that the child wasn't dead. I knew something about first aid, and I did the best I could for her, and got help from a doctor at the hospital where her father had worked before the Nazis took over. We worked with her, asking ourselves every ten minutes why we were doing it. We almost agreed with her mother that it would be better to let her die. But I managed to get a letter to the French studio that had bought two of my books, and they gave us help. That was just before the war began. A few more weeks and it would have been too late."

There was a moment of stricken silence. Then Elizabeth demanded, "How can you talk about it so quietly! Your friends driven to death, a mother trying to kill her own child—and you might be talking about the weather!"

"You have to learn to talk about it like that," Kessler said. "If you don't." He shrugged.

"Was he a very good friend of yours?" Dick asked.

"My best friend. He saved my life after the last war, and made it possible for me to walk instead of spending these years in a wheelchair. He was a very great man."

something like discover radium, and she nearly got killed!"

"That's exactly what I mean. I don't know that Margaret's a genius. It's too soon to tell. But I know that in this mad killing of theirs the fascists from Berlin to Tokyo have destroyed genius, and they're still doing it. They're destroying their future, and yours. That's the real tragedy of our time. It's so terrible we don't often think about it because we can't bear it. Margaret's parents had at least had a chance to contribute something to the world. But she's never had any, and these other children who didn't escape had never had any. And what it amounts to," he said clearly to Dick and Cherry, "is that your children may die of loathsome diseases because the scientists who could have saved them were killed when they were four years old."

"Oh, my gosh!" cried Cherry from the top of the ladder. Her hand caught at her throat. "That's what they're doing. I never thought of that all this minute. That's what it's about."

Dick stood up. "Holy smoke," he said slowly. "You're ghastly. You're right—it's too awful to think about. You just think of kids as kids, but golly—when you do think about them as growing up, or not growing up, I mean the important ones—suppose the Germans had blitzed England fifty years ago and had got Churchill. I mean, and now we'd never know."

Elizabeth put her hands over her eyes. "It seemed to her that she could suddenly see them, little boys like Brian, little girls with fat pig-tails like Margaret, the Einsteins, Chingis, Curries of the future, going in a horrible procession to annihilation. Suppose the bombs had dropped fifty years ago. She thought of sulfanilamide and the Four Freedoms, television and cargo planes, vitamins and the Panama Canal. Her generation had these because the men and women who brought them into being had been allowed to grow up. She could hear Kessler's voice, passionate with a great grief.

"That's the real horror of fascism. We're sick at what they are doing today, but this is such a little part of it. Their awful crime is what they are doing tomorrow. We don't know what they've already destroyed—a cure for cancer, a new philosophical system, a rocket to the moon. Margaret got out, but the others who didn't get out—think of the books that will never be written, the work that will never be done. They're destroying tomorrow, and tomorrow is forever."

For a moment nobody answered him. They were looking at each other, shamed, and it left them stricken. At last Dick spoke, slowly, as though to himself.

"Tomorrow is forever," he repeated. "I guess that's right. We'll never know what we might have had but for them. Nobody will ever know."

After he had spoken none of them said anything else for what seemed a long time. Elizabeth looked up at the bright Christmas tree. Cherry moved restlessly, stirring the branches; the ornaments tinkled and glittered as though laughing at the world's pain. Margaret came in.

"Mrs. Stackworth is making some tea for you," she announced.

They all looked at her, without answering; she was suddenly a rare and precious symbol left standing above a vast destruction. Margaret continued.

"She's making some sandwiches too, and she says you'll be ready in a minute." Margaret looked up at Cherry. "What are you still sitting up there for? Isn't the tree done? Why don't you come down?"

"I—I guess I forgot about it," Cherry returned lamely. "We were—we were talking."

"What were you talking about?" Elizabeth got up and went over to Margaret. She bent down and took Margaret's hands in hers.

"We were talking about what a dear girl you were, and how glad we are you came to this country to be with us. We hope you're going to have a wonderful Christmas."

Margaret smiled at her, shyly. "You're sort of like my mother," she said. She hesitated a moment, and then, conquering her diffidence, she put her arms around Elizabeth's neck and kissed her.

Several days after the turn of the New Year, Kessler received a letter from Dick:

Dear Mr. Kessler,

I guess there is no use trying to tell you how shocked I was at what you said the other day. My sister felt the same way I did. I do not write very well—and it is hard to say what I mean. But this is what I am getting at. I know you are a very busy man but if there is a day, maybe a Sunday, when you have some time to spare would you let me come over and see you? I did not want to bother you until after Christmas, but there are some things I have been thinking about and I would like to talk to you anyway. You seem to understand our family very well and I know they like you and would not mind anything I said to you. Let me know if I would be convenient.

Sincerely yours,

Richard Spratt Herlong, Jr.

After he had read Dick's letter, Kessler sat for some time thinking, his forehead resting on his big thick hand. These months in Beverly Hills had been more difficult than he had thought they were going to be. Most things were, when you came down to them.

The recreation boxes include any mailable toy in good condition, balls, dolls, anything a child enjoys playing with.

The coming week is National Girl Scout Week, and a good time to start our "Thinking of Others". One box will go to the Filipino girls and two will be sent to Europe.
